HOLT DEMANDS $10M TO REPLACE LIAR WILLIAMS!

LESTER HOLT, who took over the NBC Nightly News when Brian Williams was dumped for lying, demanded the Peacock network make him their next $10 million man!

"Lester had them by the s from the moment they approached him," says a source. "They had no Plan B!"

In the driver's seat

Williams, 56, was suspended without pay in February from the newscast he'd helmed for 11 years after he was caught lying about his 2003 coverage of the Iraq War.

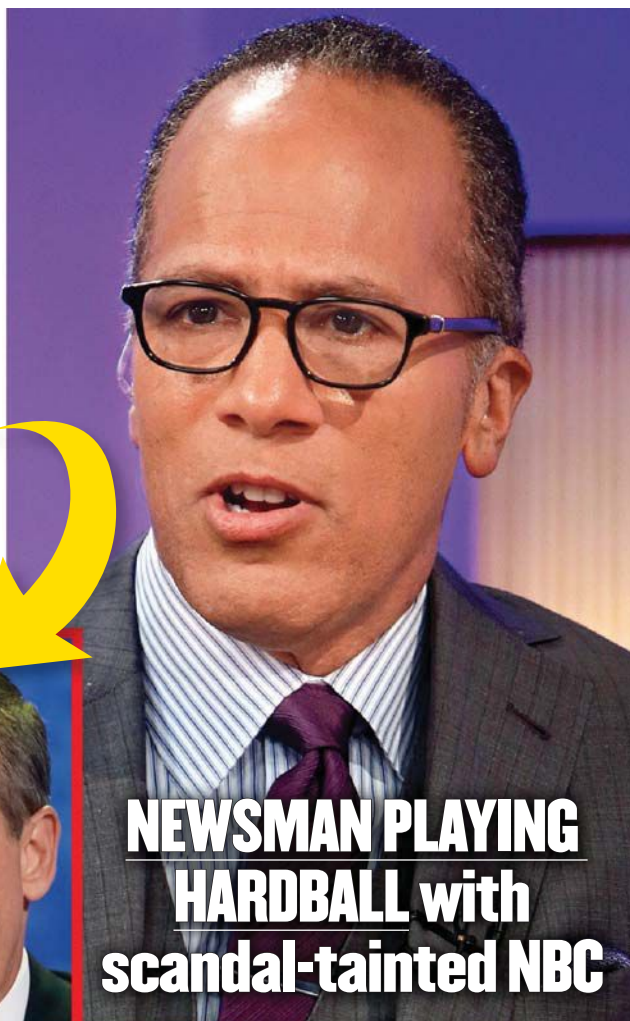

No one expected him to return to the job - and that put Lester in the driver's seat, say insiders.

Holt was being paid about $4 million a year, and a source tells GLOBE that NBC offered him a $7 million salary to become the full-time anchor.

But Holt refused to settle for "a penny less" than Williams' current $10 million salary, the source says.

"The feeling has always been, if he got less than what Brian was making, it sent the message he's less anchor-worthy than Brian," says another source.

"And there's never been any way NBC could consider bringing in somebody brand new - with all the chaos in the NBC newsroom right now, it wasn't an option."

NEWSMAN PLAYING HARDBALL with scandal-tainted NBC

Lester Holt, who's already known to viewers from hosting Dateline (right), holds all the cards, sources say

"In Lester's mind, he's been a good foot soldier for NBC the past 15 years.

"Audiences know and trust him. They've seen him host Dateline, the weekend edition of the Today show and the weekend edition of NBC Nightly News.

"Most of all, viewers see him as a man of integrity, which is so vital given lying Brian's shocking fall from grace.

"He always believed he had the network over a barrel, and they were going to have to pay through the nose to keep him on board."

BEACH BOY legend Brian Wilson is dying, friends fear.

The 73-year-old music icon, who's battled drugs, booze, mental illness and abuse from a quack shrink, "is packing on the pounds again and looks terrible," says an insider.

"His weight is ballooning, putting him in danger of heart attack or stroke.

'Worried sick'

"And he's been ravaged by a lifetime of mental illness and the damage that years of drug and alcohol abuse did to him.

"We're worried sick. We fear he's dying, and the end is near."

And as a final farewell to fans, the God Only Knows singer is setting the record straight by allowing filmmakers to show the dark side of his tragic life in the biopic Love & Mercy.

As GLOBE revealed last week, the film shows how quack psychologist Dr. Eugene Landy overmedicated the troubled rocker, abused him mentally, drained him financially and gained total control over his life through a controversial conservatorship.

In the film, John Cusack and Paul Dano play Wilson at different times in his life while Paul Giamatti plays Landy.

"Doctors who examined Brian afterward said the drugs Landy gave him did far more damage than Brian did to himself through recreational drug use," says a source.

The architect of the Beach Boys' iconic sound with hits like Surfin' U.S.A. and Surfer Girl, Wilson quit touring 50 years ago when he was stricken with crippling stage fright.

"Brian is lucky to have survived. He owes his life to his second wife, Melinda," says a source. "She saved him from evil Dr. Landy.

"By the time Melinda came on the scene, Landy had convinced Brian to award him most of his estate in his will."

After their 1995 marriage, Melinda, 68, got Brian proper medical treatment and she "weaned him off the dangerous drug cocktails Landy had forced on him," says the source.

But Wilson's still tormented by voices in his head of his late brothers – Dennis, who drowned in 1983, and Carl, killed by lung cancer in 1998.

"The voices still torture Brian," says a source, "and he wants to escape.

DEVASTATED superstar Tom Hanks suffered a secret breakdown as his family was ripped apart by tragedy and scandal, say sources.

The beloved two-time Oscar winner has been clobbered by a shocking double blow: his wife Rita Wilson is battling deadly cancer and their drug-plagued son, Chet, went berserk in a London hotel and ended up wanted by the law.

"It's like his world is falling apart," says a friend. "He's been in tears for his wife and son. He's got to be thinking, 'Money can't buy me happiness.'"

"He believes his first job is to take care of his family, but he feels he lost sight of that over the years while he was making one blockbuster film after another."

Now, friends tell GLOBE the 58-year-old Forrest Gump star is ready to kiss Hollywood goodbye.

"He's re-examining his priorities because he knows his family is in crisis like never before," says the friend. "He needs to find a way to save them all."

Adds a pal, "Tom is sick to his stomach. Rita has been

"Tom just wants to finish the movie he is working on and tend to his family. He's putting any other projects on hold."

The one bright note is that the

"All this has made Tom realize how much he loves Rita – and how he can't live without her," says a source.

Married 27 years to the actress-singer, Tom's life was turned upside down in April when the 58-year-old brunette lost both breasts to invasive lobular carcinoma, a cancer in the milk-producing glands.

After vomiting outside the club, Chet went to his hotel room with three female organizers of the event. He reportedly asked for cocaine and became furious when the women refused to hop into bed with him.

The brat began shouting and trashing his room, according to reports. He's said to have smashed a mirror and ripped a television from its mount on the wall, causing about $2,000 in damage.

London cops were called the next morning after the damage was discovered, but he had already left. Lawmen went hunting for Chet, who could face charges for destruction of property.

Hanks' son has a troubling history. He's posted images online of himself toting guns. In April, he threatened to violently attack shock jock Howard Stern.

"I am going to see you in person and I am going to hurt you," he promised the America's Got Talent judge.

His bratty antics have left his star parents heartbroken, especially since Chet was in rehab battling booze and drug demons in January.

Wilson wanted to take time off from her current Broadway play Fish In The Dark to counsel Chet, but Hanks "told her that he's a man, so I need to deal with him," says the pal.

WILLIAM COLLA

PRINCE WILLIAM suffered a sudden collapse at his mother's graveside and had to be rushed to a private hospital as his terrified wife, Kate, tried to comfort him.

"Poor Kate was beside herself. William was struggling to breathe," says an insider, who revealed chilling details of the crisis that unfolded as the young royals paid tribute to William's late mother, Princess Diana.

Shockingly, the emotion-charged visit to Diana's island grave ended with distressed William having to be taken for medical treatment after leaving pictures of his babies, George and Charlotte, at the memorial.

Knelt in prayer

Diana was laid to rest on an island, known as The Oval, on the grounds of Althorp, her family's 14,000-acre ancestral home, after she was killed in a 1997 Paris car wreck.

After rowing out to the island, William and Kate knelt in prayer at Diana's graveside after laying out new photos of their children – taken by 33-year-old Kate – on the grass, surrounded by bouquets of early summer flowers.

"William suddenly became emotional, overcome by the moment, and Kate rested a comforting arm on his shoulder," the source tells GLOBE.

With eyes welling, he told his mother they had named their newborn Charlotte

Elizabeth Diana in her honor, and tearfully expressed his regrets that she hadn't lived to see the babies she'd have cherished as an adoring grandmother, the source reveals.

William spoke movingly to his mother about how the births of his two children and marriage to his beloved Kate have changed his life and prepared him to take the Throne when Queen Elizabeth, his 89-year-old grandmother, dies.

But suddenly he went deathly white and broke down, says the source.

"William was devastated because George and Charlotte can never know her."

As GLOBE revealed soon after George was born on

HEARTSICK SON

Prince William was so overcome with emotion that the blood drained from his face and he passed out gasping for breath

July 22, 2013, William took a picture of his first child to the graveside and asked for Diana's blessing.

But this time, insiders say, the 33-year-old Prince became so distraught, he appeared to pass out and crumpled in a heap on the ground.

"Terrified Kate called security on her cell phone," says the source. "A royal protection officer immediately rowed out to the island and wanted to call for an ambulance. But William protested.

"Only Kate's pleas that he see a doctor right away convinced him to go to a private hospital nearby.

Although he started to recover on the short journey, William was advised to stay overnight.

"Kate slept in a room next to her husband. They left very early the next day and were driven back to their country home, Anmer Hall 80 miles away."

William has vowed to give his children a normal life in rural Norfolk, making only occasional visits to their official London residence in Kensington Palace.

He's so determined to raise his family as normally as possible that he's taken a $75,000-a-year local job as an air ambulance chopper pilot so he can go home each night to his wife and kids.

Another insider tells GLOBE, "William's taking time out from palace duties to give his wife and children some freedom before he inherits the crown."

As GLOBE has reported, Queen Elizabeth is committed to handing the Throne to William and bypassing his father, Prince Charles, who is facing a $400 million divorce battle with Diana's love rival, Camilla.

Says the insider, "William knows their idyllic family life will change forever when he's crowned King."

ISIS BUILDING A-BOMB IN AMERICA!

TOP SECRET REPORT

EVIL ISIS terrorists have smuggled enough radioactive material and nuclear weapon parts into the U.S. to make an A-bomb!

And even more terrifying, experts fear the bloodthirsty killers are readying a major spectacular show of power to coincide with Ramadan, the Islamic holy month that ends on July 17.

“Bungling Obama is losing the war on terror. We have to get rid of him NOW!” charges a furious intelligence insider.

“He’s let ISIS get the upper hand – and that’s putting every American life in danger.”

Even as ISIS leaders ramp up attempts to cause more carnage on U.S. soil, the President shockingly admits he doesn’t “yet have a complete strategy” to defeat the rabid Muslim fundamentalists.

ISIS has overrun parts of Syria and Iraq and attracted thousands of disaffected followers across the world, triggering a bloody attack on a Texas convention earlier this year and a Boston radical's attempt to behead police.

“Obama is fiddling while America burns!” charges Roger Stone, a former aide to President Richard Nixon and the author of investigative books about former Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson.

“He keeps admitting that we have no strategy. And to the extent that we do, it seems to be pinprick air raids that don’t do anything more than enrage them, and don’t seem to set them back.

“Obama shows no resolve, no plan, no strategy.”

Meanwhile, an intelligence source also blasts Obama for showing little fight against ISIS, which has vowed to kill Americans and other Westerners wherever it can.

“While ISIS is smuggling parts for bombs, plotting to take out tens of thousands of innocent Americans with airborne chemical bombs, and infiltrating the U.S. border, Obama is photographed calmly drinking beer at 11 a.m. in Germany,” the source tells GLOBE.

“He acts like he couldn’t care less. It’s like he’s decided to phone in the last 18 months of his presidency, while he parties on.

“It’s just outrageous that this man and his advisors are still struggling to come up with a plan – while ISIS has run roughshod over the Mideast for more than a year.

“All the sacrifices of our brave American troops over the past 12 years have been erased. ISIS has even captured thousands of armed vehicles we provided to the Iraqis, and are now using them to launch their attacks on cities and towns.”

As GLOBE reported in its May 25 issue, ISIS has set up a training camp in the Mexican desert just 10 miles from El Paso, Texas, and also announced it had “71 fighters in 15 states” ready to launch terror strikes on targets in the U.S.

And the savage group – that revels in massacring helpless, innocent victims – is plotting to hide a chemical or biological weapon aboard a U.S.-bound airliner and detonate it over a large American city, potentially killing thousands.

Now, ISIS publicly boasts that it can buy parts for nuclear weapons and smuggle them into the U.S., using the same routes developed by south-of-the-border drug cartels.

The group has seized enough radioactive material from government facilities to rain down annihilation, says Australia's Minister for Foreign Affairs, Julie Bishop.

When they swept across Syria and Iraq, ISIS “did not just clear out the cash from local banks,” Bishop says.

Gen. John F. Kelly, head of the U.S.

Southern Command, told a Senate committee in March that the plan to use Mexican drug cartels to smuggle nuclear weapons into the U.S. was viable.

He also said the group could use routes in the Caribbean, where about 100 fighters have joined ISIS.

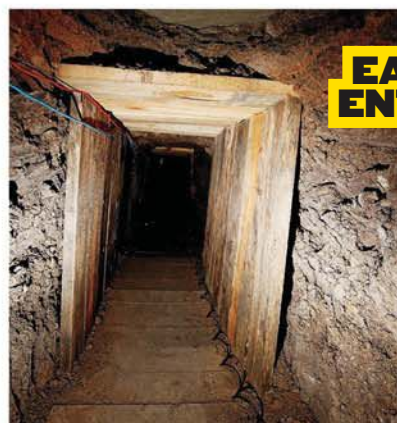

Alarmingly, the Institute for the Study of War warns, “ISIS is likely to end Ramadan with attempted spectacular military offensive actions.” And sources indicate a Top Secret report says A-bomb parts have already crossed the border.

A military official complains, “We’ve given Obama lots of options, he just hasn’t acted on them.” And a Beltway insider says, “Mr. President, you must resign now.”

Even U.S. Sen. John McCain, who lost the 2008 presidential election to Obama, says bitterly, “one has to wonder whether this President just wants to wait out the next year and a half and basically do nothing...”

Fumes the intelligence source, “If the President doesn’t do something about ISIS soon, our own streets could be running with blood, and enormous areas could be contaminated by radiation from ‘dirty bombs.’

“They need to be stopped over there – or we’ll soon be fighting them here!”

REVEALED! SEC STAR TOOK T

Christopher Lee, 93,

BIG screen Dracula Christopher Lee terrified millions playing monsters and evil villains, but the British star went to his grave haunted by his own nightmares!

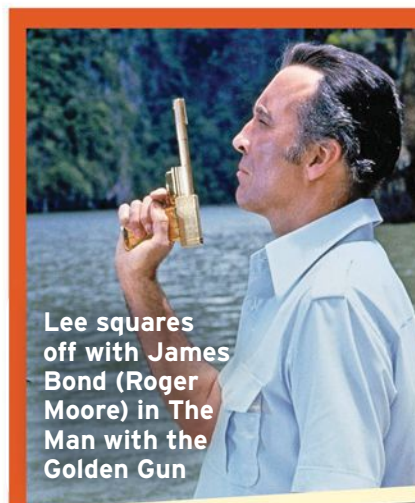

Lee served in Britain's Special Air Service during World War II, fighting in North Africa and also witnessing firsthand the carnage inside Nazi concentration camps. Lee was so traumatized by the atrocities he saw, the real-life war hero refused to speak about them.

"When the war finished, I was 23 and already I had seen enough horror to last me a lifetime," said Lee, who made his name playing a bloodthirsty vampire. "I'd seen dreadful, dreadful things, without saying a word. So seeing horror depicted on film doesn't affect me much."

Lee was also said to be a British spy. But he maintained his oath of secrecy until his June 7 death at the age of 93. He'd been hospitalized for respiratory problems and heart failure.

"We are forbidden to discuss any specific operations," he once explained. "Let's just say I was in Special Forces and leave it at that."

Following the war, the imposing 6-foot-5 veteran turned BEATLEMANIA hit America months before the Fab Four's Feb. 9, 1964 coming out on the Ed Sullivan Show!

Then-unknown George Harrison created quite a stir the previous September when he performed at a VFW club in El Dorado, Ill., while visiting his sister, Louise, nearby.

The late rock legend jammed with a local band, The Four Vests, and brought the house down.

BUNGLING prison bosses were baffled after two cold-blooded murderers pulled off a great escape – the first bust out since their upstate New York slammer opened 170 years ago!

Investigators say psychotic killers Richard Matt, 48, and David Sweat, 35, cut holes in their cell walls with power tools before crawling to freedom through a maze of pipes at the maximum security Clinton Correctional Facility.

Their escape is being compared to a break-out by Tim Robbins' character in the movie The Shawshank Redemption.

Now GLOBE can reveal how the killers did it.

Amazingly, experts say the break-out was an INSIDE JOB aided by lousy security!

Clever convicts

"They had to have help," says Matthew Horace, a former agent with the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives.

"I wouldn't be surprised if there's more than one, two, three or five people that helped them on the inside."

Indeed, lawmen say they're tracking potential accomplices who may have helped the monsters in their June 6 escape.

Experts believe Matt and Sweat used a smuggled power saw or hacksaw to cut holes in the 3/8-inch steel-plated wall behind cots at the rear of their adjoining cells. That got them into a jungle of pipes and tunnels in the bowels of the prison.

The clever convicts then shimmied down six levels to the ground floor and smashed through a double brick wall.

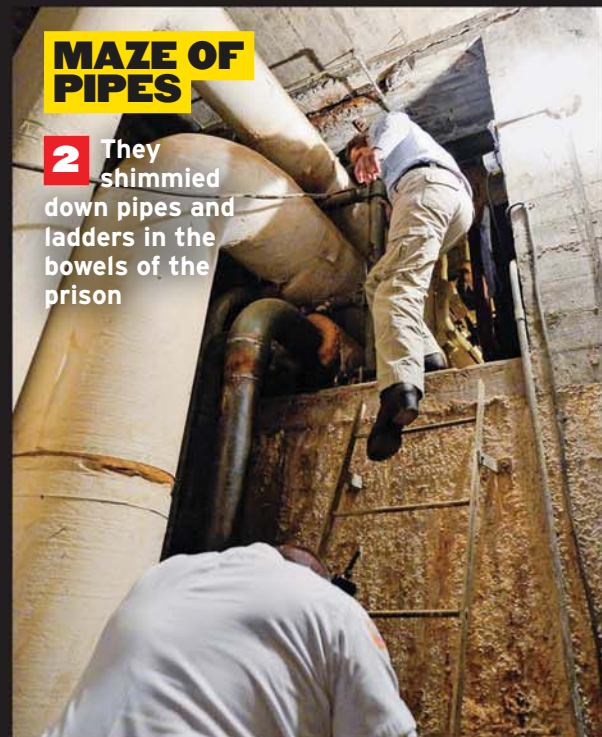

At the base of a massive outer wall, the inmates used a saw to cut a hole in a 2-foot-diameter steel pipe. They crawled through, cutting their way out at the other end, to reach a manhole 400 feet outside the prison wall. They cut through a steel lock and chain on the manhole cover to escape.

Outrageously, the monsters left a taunting farewell note for prison officials on the pipe. Written on yellow paper, the message featured a crudely drawn smiley face with the words, "Have a nice day!"

The killers' green prison uniforms were found crammed into the pipe which wormed beneath the area.

The desperate duo surfaced through a manhole onto a street a block from the prison. The amazing plan nearly unraveled when their getaway driver failed

Matt is even more vicious. Fired by his boss, William Rickerson, in 1997, he beat and tortured the 76-year-old food broker for hours before snapping his neck, cutting up the body and tossing the pieces in the Niagara River.

Escaping to Mexico, he fatally stabbed an American man during a robbery attempt outside a bar. After serving eight years, he was extradited to New York. Matt was convicted of Rickerson's murder and sentenced to 25 years to life, with parole no sooner than 2032.

But Matt can also be a sweet-talking ladies' man. Officials believe he charmed Joyce Mitchell, a 51-year-old married mom, who works in the prison tailor shop, into being a get-away driver.

"Matt's very handsome and, in all frankness, very well endowed," says a source. "He gets girlfriends any place he goes."

But investigators believe Mitchell got cold feet and instead went to the hospital complaining of "panic attacks" the day of the break.

After the escape, Gov. Andrew Cuomo compared the episode to a far-fetched movie.

"If it was in a movie script," he says, "you would have said it was overdone!"

to show. They fled on foot and were reportedly discovered by a couple in their backyard in Dannemora, N.Y., at 12:30 a.m. on June 6. But the couple say they didn't suspect anything when the men told them, "We're just lost. We don't know where we are. We're on the wrong street" and then strolled off.

The crafty killers also got a five-hour head start on lawmen by tricking prison guards. They stuffed their beds with sweat-shirts so guards would think they were still asleep. The evil killers also fooled officials by acting like angels and getting transferred to the prison's special treatment "honor block."

They were allowed to wear regular duds and mingle with civilian workers, who may have helped them escape.

Based on their horrific pasts, it's incredible prison officials would trust them in any way.

In 2002, Sweat and a pal riddled a sheriff's deputy with 15 bullets, ran him over with a car and shot him point-blank in the

'FRIENDLY THE CLOWN' COLLARED AS SEX PERV!

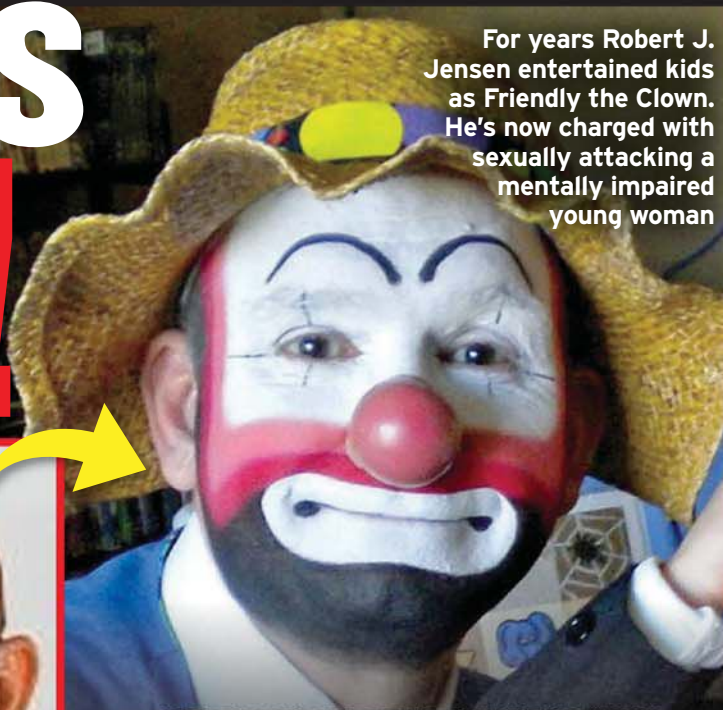

For years Robert J. Jensen entertained kids as Friendly the Clown. He's now charged with sexually attacking a mentally impaired young woman POPULAR kid's birthday party performer Friendly the Clown is a twisted creep who raped a brain-damaged woman young enough to be his granddaughter, charge cops.

Now, 57-year-old Robert J. Jensen, who worked children's parties and community events as both "Friendly" and "Bob the Balloon Twister" for two decades, is charged with sexually attacking a 20-year-old mentally impaired woman.

Cops say his DNA matches samples collected from the woman during a rape exam and accuse him of taking advantage of a "vulnerable adult with mental health difficulties."

The Princeton, Minn., clown was locked away in Mille Lacs County Jail with bail set at $100,000.

BRAIN-DAMAGED GAL CHARGES SHE WAS RAPED

Incredibly, Internet reviewers awarded Friendly five-star ratings saying he provides "good clean entertainment." But the victim claims he got dirty with her!

She says he was "nice" and gave her "rides to her job and medical appointments" when she first moved in with him and his wife, Peggy, 58, while she tried to deal with a traumatic brain injury.

Groping and fondling

But less than two months later, at 5 a.m. on Jan. 30, she awoke to a completely nude Jensen in her bedroom groping and fondling her, she claims. After he stopped and left, she went back to sleep. But at 9 a.m., she says he came back and raped her.

She says Jensen told her "he was praying for a little girl like her to come around and mess around."

The woman texted the nightmare ordeal to a relative who urged her to tell someone.

She says she went to Jensen's wife and told her the story. But when Peggy questioned her hubby, he denied doing anything wrong.

On Feb. 1, the woman went to a hospital where she was given a sexual assault exam and DNA samples were taken.

Cops later got a swab of Jensen's DNA and say they have a match.

He was arrested on May 5 and charged with two counts of criminal sexual conduct, two counts of criminal sexual conduct with a mentally impaired victim. Amazingly, Jensen had worked a child's birthday party in April – after the woman leveled her allegations and before he was arrested.

The woman claims Jensen attacked her in his Princeton, Minn., home (circle) where she was staying with him and his wife

It all started when 85-year-old Clint appeared on Spike TV's Guys' Choice Awards and noted Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson is an athlete who has jumped to acting, much like football's "Jim Brown and Caitlyn Somebody."

But the fools at Spike TV chickened out and decided to cut Clint's shot at the sex-swap Olympic champ.

MONSTER MOM WHITNEY DROVE KRISSY TO SUICIDE!

TRAGIC Bobbi Kristina Brown, who was left comatose in January after a suspected drug overdose, was set on the terrible path of self-destruction by her own mother, Whitney Houston.

According to author Ian Halperin's explosive new book, Whitney & Bobbi Kristina: The Deadly Price of Fame, the girl, known as "Krissy" by friends and family, was already a suicidal drug addict at age 14.

Halperin paints Krissy, now 22, as a rudderless wild child with a mother so hopelessly consumed by her own drug demons that she was completely useless as a parent.

Psychiatric hospital

When the I Will Always Love You diva's marriage to Bobbi Kristina's badboy father, Bobby Brown, ended after 15 years, any chance of setting things right were long gone, the author says.

Things became so bad, the author says Krissy was even

Whitney and assistant Robyn Crawford (right) were said to be an item

By the time Whitney Houston and Bobby Brown (inset above) ended their marriage, it was too late for parental control sent to a psychiatric hospital for observation when she was 14. She'd tried to plunge a knife into her mom before cutting her own wrists, he writes.

In another bombshell revelation, Halperin thinks Whitney's out-of-control drug abuse might be the result of her never being allowed to declare her lesbian love for teenage pal Robyn Crawford.

The women shared a hotel room when the superstar toured, sparking rampant rumors they were embroiled in a gay affair – which Whitney was forced to deny.

The singer was even blackmailed by an attorney claiming to know about the romance, Halperin writes. His book claims Whitney's father, John Houston, "settled the matter."

The similarities between the mother-daughter tragedies are chilling.

Whitney, 48, was found dead at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in L.A. on Feb. 11, 2012. According to the coroner, she'd drowned in her bathtub and cocaine was a contributing factor.

Bobbi Kristina – who remains on life support – was found face down in a tub of cold water in her Georgia home on Jan. 31, just days before the anniversary of her mother's death.

Says Halperin, "Only the toxicology report, or, in the worst case scenario, an autopsy," can say if Krissy had drugs in her body at the time disaster struck.

GOONIES KIDS 30 YEARS LATER

HEY you guys! Can you believe it's been 30 years since The Goonies hit the big screen? In a special report, GLOBE reveals what has happened to the iconic cast of kids who set off to find a pirate's treasure to save their neighborhood from being turned into a golf course.

Data moved behind camera

VIETNAMESE-BORN Jonathan Ke Quan had already made a name for himself as Harrison Ford's sidekick, Short Round, in Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom the previous summer. Following his role as brainy Data, Quan, now 43, graduated from USC. He's pursuing a music career in Australia and takes behind-the-camera jobs, including stunt choreographer on X-Men.

Badboy Brand robs the cradle

JAMES BROLIN's son is one of the hottest actors today. But off-screen, 47-year-old Josh Brolin, who played Mikey's big brother, Brand, has struggled. Diane Lane's ex has been busted twice for alcohol-related incidents since 2008. In November 2013, the W. star checked into rehab. In March, he became engaged to his assistant, model Kathryn Boyd, 28.

Mikey is still the ring leader

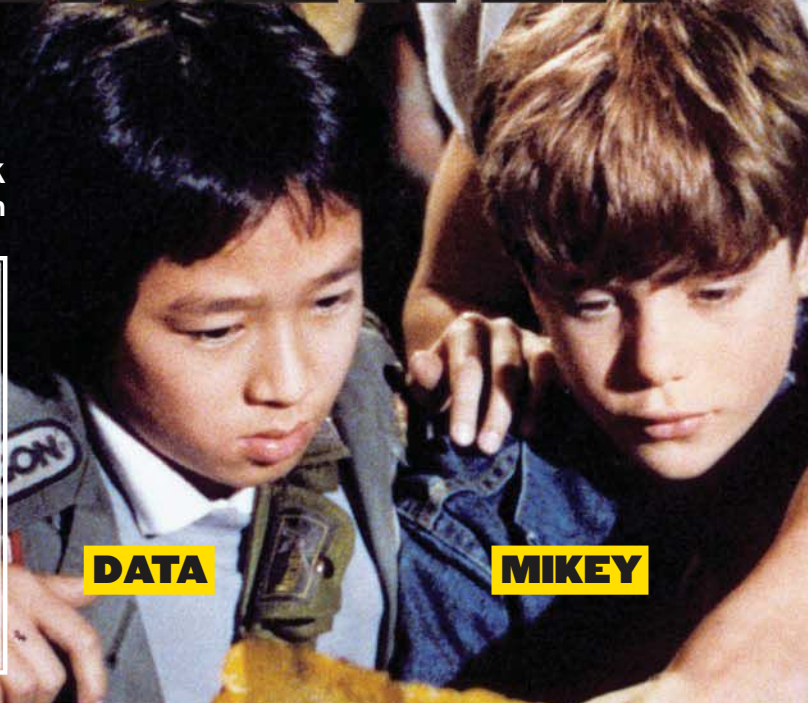

PATTY DUKE's son, Sean Astin, has gone on to have a successful career as an adult. Following his turn as Mikey, the good-natured leader of The Goonies, 44-year-old Astin starred in the feel-good movie Rudy and portrayed Samwise Gamgee in The Lord of the Rings franchise. He currently stars in the FX vampire drama The Strain.

Chunk got slim & learned law!

TRANSFORMING from Chunk to hunk killed Jeff Cohen's showbiz career! The plus-sized star truffle-shuffled into the hearts of fans as klutzy Chunk. But once the pounds peeled off, the movie roles dried up. "There were basically about four fat kids in Hollywood, so every time there was a fat kid role you saw the same people at the audition," he says. "It was survival of the fattest. But when I hit puberty, it was a career-ender for me." But don't feel bad for Cohen, 41, who earned a law degree from UCLA after showbiz. A successful entertainment lawyer, he now says, "My clients get a kick out of the fact their lawyer is Chunk."

Mouth shattered by booze & drugs

COREY FELDMAN's star burned bright as one of Hollywood's hottest child actors in the 1980s. But the teen heartthrob, who played chatterbox Mouth, soon fell afoul of drugs and alcohol. After multiple drug-related arrests and stints in rehab, the twice-divorced actor, 43, now scrapes by with small roles in minor movies and reality TV shows.

Tomboy Stef lands new TV show

MARTHA PLIMPTON used her role as tough-talking tomboy Stef as a launching pad for a steady career on stage and screen. The daughter of actors Keith Carradine and Shelley Plimpton, the 44-year-old actress won an Emmy for a recurring role on The Good Wife and will star in the upcoming sitcom The Real O'Neals.

Andy got lots to cheer about

AFTER playing Brand's love interest, cheerleader Andy, 48-year-old Kerri Green starred in several more flicks before taking a break to study art at Vassar College. She's since returned, guesting on ER and Law and Order: SVU. She also launched a production company, Independent Women Artists, and directed one of the company's movies, Bellyfruit, in 1999.

SLOTH

Sloth died from drug overdose

HULKING former NFL player John Matuszak stole the show as Sloth Fratelli, the deformed and abandoned member of a criminal family who comes to the rescue of The Goonies. His one-liners are still fondly recited by fans to this day. But sadly, Matuszak died in 1989 at age 38 from an accidental drug overdose.

HOW TO AVOID KIDNEY STONES

Drinking fresh lemonade helps prevent kidney stones

DRINKING water can slash your risk of developing agonizing kidney stones by a whopping 50 percent!

One in 10 Americans will suffer from the painful condition but docs at the Mayo Clinic say you don't have to be among them.

Drink at least eight glasses of water a day and cut your risk in half!

"We've known for years drinking lots of fluids helps flush the kidneys and keep them clear," says Dr. Jacob Teitelbaum.

Kidney stones are mineral deposits usually made of calcium oxalate that can cause excruciating pain when they travel from the kidney through the ureter to the bladder.

Small stones are flushed out by drinking fluids. Larger deposits need to be dissolved with shock waves or a ureteroscopy, an instrument fed into the urethra through the bladder to remove or break up the stones.

Unfortunately, if you've had an episode, you have a 50 percent risk of having

Shun red meat and shellfish, but eat nuts, beans, grains and seeds another bout within five years, says Teitelbaum.

Here are other ways to reduce the growth of kidney stones:

■ Supplements: Taking 200 milligrams of magnesium along with 25 milligrams of vitamin B6 daily decreases recurrence of kidney stones by 90 percent.

■ Drink lemonade: In addition to water, fruits containing natural citrate prevent stones.

■ Eat grains, beans, nuts and seeds: Foods rich in the organic acid phytate lower the risk of kidney stones by 37 percent.

■ Reduce red meat and shellfish: Compounds in these foods create uric acid stones.

■ Watch your weight: Obese men increase their risk of kidney stones by 33 percent. Obese women double their risk.

3 cups of coffee fights ED!

➤ University of Texas Health Science Center researchers found men who downed two to three cups of java a day - or the equivalent in caffeine - were 42 percent less likely to suffer from erectile dysfunction than those who drank little or none. Coffee increases blood flow. But don't overdo it. The study found the effectiveness begins to drop if you consume too much caffeine.

Mozart's music helps you focus

➤ MOZART is good for your brain! In a recent study, kids and old folks performed better on mental tests while listening to a minuet by the 18th Century master. The groups took a test once to a standard version of the music, a second time while a discordant version played and a third time in silence. They were able to answer the questions faster and more accurately while the harmonious Mozart music was playing.

FORGET energy drinks when you're tired. You'll be far better off grabbing a healthy snack to get energized - and so will your waistline!

"Energy drinks are chock full of sugar in liquid form and that's the worst metabolism buster," says Dr. Joe Colella, author of The Appetite Solution.

"Liquid sugar gives you a temporary burst of energy and then you crash because it releases the stress hormone, cortisol, which also helps deposit fat around the waistline. Then you crave more sugar and the vicious cycle begins.

"A bottle of vitamin water, for example, can have a whopping 30 grams of sugar, the equivalent of more than 7 teaspoons!" Try these energy-boosting foods instead guzzling energy drinks:

foods like sweet potatoes help you stay fuller longer because of the fiber and water content. Make an energizing shake with blueberries to keep you focused or strawberries to turn fat into energy. Melons are 90 percent water - and prevent fatigue-inducing dehydration.

3. GREEK YOGURT

The calcium in this food favorite has been linked to weight loss, especially around the abdominal region, says Tara Gidus, the dietician for the Orlando Magic basketball team. Yogurt also has protein to keep you satisfied longer.

4. BEANS: Fiber-rich beans release energy and protein slowly, so you feel fuller longer and eat less.

5. GREEN TEA

This low-calorie beverage contains caffeine and dozens of nutrients that boost the metabolism for more energy.

6. LEMON WATER

This is the simplest way to get an energy boost with absolutely no calories, says Dr. Colella. Thirst and dehydration are powerful appetite stimulants - but dehydration also slows down your metabolism.

HOLLYWOOD MORTICIAN TELLS ALL: MARILYN MONROE'S HOT BODY WAS FAKE!

She wore false teeth, padded bras – and didn't shave her legs

THE mortician who handled Marilyn Monroe's body was shocked to discover the world's most famous sex symbol was in lousy shape and looked terrible!

Funeral company boss Allan Abbott was in the room with an embalmer nicknamed "Frenchie" during the autopsy after the star's Aug. 5, 1962, death. "When we removed the sheet covering her, it was almost impossible to believe this was the body of Marilyn Monroe," Abbott recalls. "She looked like a very average, aging woman who had not been taking very good care of herself."

"Her natural hair color was light brown, not blonde. Her legs hadn't been shaved for at least a week. Her lips were chapped. She also needed a manicure and pedicure."

And, since she'd been lying on her stomach when she died, the blood had settled and she had ugly "purple blotches on her face, and her neck was very swollen," he says. After the autopsy, Monroe's death was ruled a suicide – but now investigators insist she was murdered on the orders of her married lover, U.S. Attorney Gen. Robert F.

Kennedy, who feared she'd go public.

But the Some Like It Hot vixen, who also bedded President John F. Kennedy, had secrets of her own. Workers prepping the 36-year-old for her funeral also discovered the supposedly busty beauty wore "a small pair of false breasts" and false teeth!

Later, studio makeup man Allan "Whitey" Snyder, who arrived to apply her cosmetics, explained Marilyn's boobs had begun to sag with age.

But another surprise came when Marilyn's clothes were delivered to dress her for burial.

"The wife of the cemetery's manager... informed me that Marilyn didn't wear panties and she couldn't find any among her clothing," adds Abbott.

BRIT BRAT DESTROYS NATIONAL ANTHEM

AREN'T there enough red-blooded Americans around to sing the National Anthem?

Apparently not!

The L.A. Dodgers had British-born actress Minnie Driver wail the Star Spangled Banner at a game, and the ditzy Good Will Hunting beauty blew it – not once – but TWICE!

When she got to "O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming," it was a garble.

Near the finale, instead of chirping "Oh, say does that star-spangled banner yet wave," it came out "Oh, say can that star-spangled banner yet wave."

The beer-sloshed fans cheered her at the end, anyway. And the Dodgers ended up walloping the St. Louis Cardinals 2-0.

Yup, it could only happen in Tinseltown!

TWISTED 'SCREECH' PULLED KNIFE ON ME!

Dustin dated Beth Musolff between 2002 and 2005

DUSTIN Diamond's ex-galpal was far from shocked when the former Saved By the Bell star was convicted after a barroom stabbing incident.

Former love Beth Musolff says Diamond was not only "abusive" during their three-year relationship that began in 2002, he also carried a knife, stashed guns under their bed and once threatened to throw her off a balcony!

"I was not surprised when I saw photos of Dustin in court and a knife attack was mentioned," she says of the actor, who played nerdy Samuel "Screech" Powers on the hit sitcom.

Diamond, 38, claims he was trying to protect his fiancée, Amanda Schultz, when he "accidentally" stabbed Casey Smet during a Milwaukee bar brawl late last year. He was recently found guilty of two misdemeanors.

"Dustin is a paranoid person. I felt my safety under threat because he had such violent tendencies," Beth says.

"You never knew what would set him off."

She claims he once pulled a knife from the glove compartment of a car she was driving and started "fiddling" with it.

"He didn't say anything, but to me the message was — 'don't push me,'" she reveals.

She adds he'd just snap

The actor was arrested after wielding a knife in a bar brawl unexpectedly, like the time they walked out on a hotel balcony after he'd played a comedy show in Louisville, Ky.

"Out of the blue, his face turned ashen and he said, 'I will push you off the balcony,'" she recalls. "I hadn't upset him and was totally blindsided. I ran past him into the room, and he acted like nothing had happened. But he'd get very confrontational with strangers, too."

Eventually, she says, his fascination with knives and unpredictable temper drove her away.

SOAP DIVA GETS THE AX!

ANOTHER one bites the dust! The Young and Restless fan favorite Cady McClain got fired by e-mail!

The 45-year-old actress knew the end was near when the script called for her character, Kelly

Jill Farren Phelps

Andrews, to smash her love interest, Jack Abbot (Peter Bergman), with a baseball bat.

"You can't just hit Jack, of all people, and get away with it," says McClain.

The two-time Emmy winner e-mailed sack-happy executive producer Jill Farren Phelps asking if her character was going to be killed off — and the TV terminator replied, "Sorry, yes."

But a source says that McClain got the last word when she confronted Phelps, saying, "You used me for my popularity, then you gutted me like a fish!"

DISGRACED, humiliated and out of work, child molester Josh Duggar, the eldest of reality TV's 19 Kids and Counting family, is suicidal, friends fear.

Duggar, 27, became a detested figure in May after the bombshell revelation that he'd sexually touched four of his younger sisters and another girl.

The fallout was cataclysmic, especially after it was revealed his father, Jim Bob, told Arkansas cops about the incidents in 2006 – FOUR YEARS after they occurred.

"Counting," the most-watched program on The Learning Channel, was abruptly yanked from the air as fans railed against the "Christian values" hypocrites.

"Josh has seen his world and his family's world crumble, and he knows it's all his fault," a friend tells GLOBE.

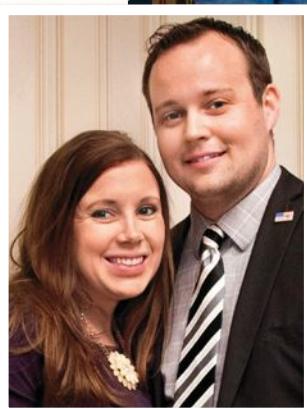

"He can never rebound from this. He's hiding himself away, leaving his loved ones fearing the worst for him.

"The longer he stays isolated, the more depressed he gets – and that has loved ones terrified for him."

Even though a share of the blame lies with his dad and mom, Michelle, for staying silent about their then-14-year-old deviant son, Josh is now a shell of his former life-embracing self, friends say.

After losing his six-figure job in Washington, D.C., as executive director of the Family Research Council, Josh and his wife, Anna, who have three children and a fourth due in July, had to leave their $3,500-a-month rental in suburban Maryland. They returned to Arkansas to live in a modest $55,000 home.

Government investigation

And Josh's lucrative public appearances have dried up. He and Anna were booked for a June 21 Christian music festival in Ohio, but the gig was scrapped, along with their $20,000 fee. Now, word is the Duggar family is the focus of a new investigation by government officials.

"Most people won't touch Josh with a 10-foot pole," says the friend. "We fear the shame is too much and he'll do something drastic."

TRUTH ABOUT BOND STARS & MY FIGHT WITH LEE MARVIN

Director John Boorman finally breaks his silence

AFTER 60 years working with Hollywood's biggest stars, director John Boorman is spilling the beans.

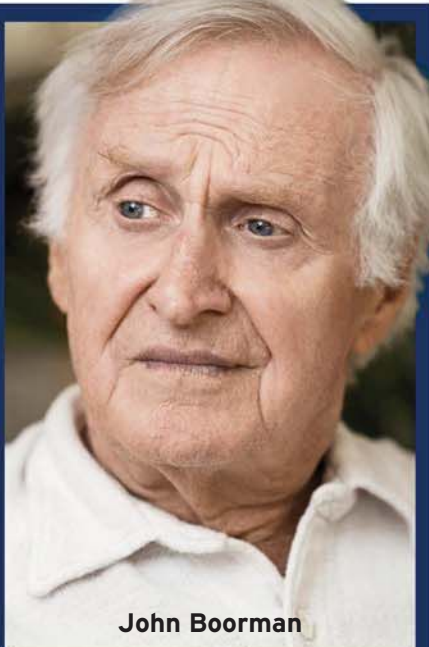

The 82-year-old, who has been nominated for five Academy Awards, often used actors' real-life flaws to get good performances.

He reveals Helen Mirren and Nicol Williamson were in the middle of a bitter feud when they starred in 1981's Excalibur.

"But their characters, Morgana and Merlin, were enemies so I cast them anyway," the director says. "And it worked!"

Helen Mirren

John Boorman

BOOZING & TROUBLED STAR GOT ME PULLED OVER

AFTER a night of drinking while filming 1967's Point Blank, Boorman wouldn't let a smashed Marvin drive home and wrestled away the keys to his car. The belligerent drunk climbed onto the roof and wouldn't budge. So Boorman began driving slowly down California's Pacific Coast Highway. Soon, a cop stopped him and said, "Do you know you have Lee Marvin on your roof?"

A scene in 1972's Deliverance demanded that Burt Reynolds and Jon Voight look sweaty and tired. Voight spent three minutes before the shoot sprinting around at top speed until he was a mess. But Burt said, "I need 30 seconds before Jon gets back." Boorman gave him the half-minute warning and "Burt spritzed a little water on his face and pretended to pant." Says the director, "I think both methods worked equally well."

PIERCE BROSNAN SCARED OFF THUGS

WHILE filming 2001's spy thriller The Taylor of Panama in the Central American nation, Boorman feared rebels would kidnap star Pierce Brosnan for ransom. "One day, a group of heavies appeared and surrounded Pierce as he came out of his trailer," he recalls. "As Pierce strode toward the camera, the gang melted away. They'd seen the mayhem Bond wreaked on bad guys and knew they were no match."

Sean and Charlotte Rampling in Zardoz

SEAN CONNERY WAS A DIVA!

BOORMAN witnessed Sean Connery's temper while making the 1974 sci-fi epic Zardoz. After re-shooting a grueling scene because the lab had scratched the film, the camera loader messed up and exposed the new film. "Sean exploded...it took several crew members to keep him from killing the guy," says Boorman. The man later had to change his name because "nobody wanted to hire the guy who'd upset James Bond so much."

YOU can't be too rich or too skinny – even if you're a pig!

Billionaire Steve Cohen's pet porker Romeo was sent packing after growing too fat and moody to keep around the old mansion.

Romeo was living high on the hog at the former hedge fund honcho's lavish Connecticut estate, wallowing in luxury with his own bedroom, an adoring family of humans and, apparently, plenty of grub.

The problem was, well, he ate like a pig!

"Romeo was like a member of the Cohen family," says a source. "He was treated like the king of the house, but he got too big."

Cohen, founder of SAC Capital who is said to be worth north of $11 billion, bought Romeo as a piglet pet for his seven kids. But the insatiable boar grew as large as a German shepherd, tipped the scales at a hefty 150 pounds. Then he got too pigheaded to stay around.

Despite being "very domesticated, intelligent and affectionate," the source says

Romeo "recently started to get a little moody."

A vet suggested the porker would be better off living with his own kind, so he was banished from his slice of hog heaven to an animal rescue sanctuary in Florida.

And he reportedly got a good send-off.

"The family even threw a going away dinner for Romeo," says the source, adding that even though Cohen had to shut down SAC Capital following an insider trading probe, "It's not like the family can't afford to bring him back for a visit."

TINSELTOWN has its share of porker-loving stars.

George Clooney was gifted with pet pig Max by then-galpal Kelly Preston in 1988.

TV REHAB DOC LIED ABOUT USING COKE!

CELEBRITY Rehab star Dr. Drew Pinsky denied doing drugs for decades, but he was a cocaine fiend and pothead during his radio days!

After bombshell revelations by his party animal pals, the 56-year-old advice guru came clean on his HLN talk show and confessed to snorting coke and smoking weed - despite denying it for years.

"I did drugs and alcohol when I was 23 years old," revealed the reality TV star.

Pinsky admits he "went around denying it" because he didn't want his young kids to know his past. But sources who worked with Pinsky in the '80s at L.A.'s KROQ-radio, where he co-hosted the Loveline advice show, are blasting the addiction specialist as a "hypocrite."

Jim "Poorman" Trenton, a fellow co-host and usher at Pinsky's wedding to wife Susan, says, "I snorted with Drew on numerous occasions.

"I don't think he was addicted, but he would do it frequently...he'd say, 'Jim, I really love cocaine.' "

A woman who was "a teen groupie" at the station declares, "I did cocaine with Dr. Drew when I was 14.

"The coke was chopped into lines on an album cover...and we all had a line, at least one or two."

OUT OF 'MINDS' BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

OH, baby! Pregnant Jennifer Love Hewitt left Criminal Minds after just one season, but producers are eager to bring her back for the upcoming season.

Hewitt's pregnant character Kate Callahan handed in her notice to boss Aaron "Hotch" Hotchner (Thomas Gibson) in the season finale, explaining that she wanted to spend quality time with her soon-to-be newborn.

Time off

In real-life the Ghost Whisperer beauty plans to spend time with her newborn, her husband, Brian Hallisay, and their toddler daughter, Autumn.

The CBS show's chief Erica Messer, says, "Jennifer wanted to be able to give this second baby everything she gave her first, and that's taking time off to be a full-time mom.

"But one of the great things about our show is we rarely kill anyone off. We left her return open creatively.

"In the finale, Hotch says to Kate, 'You always have a place here.' And we believe that wholeheartedly...If we need to call Kate back, that's something I'd love to be able to do."

But if Hewitt, 36, stays away, Messer said the show might use a "revolving door" policy of guest stars to replace her in the short term.

"This might be a good opportunity to bring in a fun guest star for a while, and maybe shake it up a little bit," she says.

SHE'S BACK AGAIN!

PRESSLY RUNS TO MOM

BLONDE beauty Jaime Pressly has signed up as a series regular for the next run of the hit CBS comedy, Mom, after her TV Land show, Jennifer Falls, stumbled following its first season.

The My Name Is Earl actress previously guested as Jill, a wacky and wealthy new friend of Christy (Anna Faris). Jill is a recovering alcoholic and can be quite tricky to deal with from time to time.

"Jill is rich and a handful, which proves problematic when Christy tries to help her out, but awfully fun when she needs a housesitter," says an Eye network source.

Christy is a single mom who lives with her teenage daughter and annoying recovering alcoholic mother, Bonnie, played by Allison Janney.

JURASSIC WORLD HUNK: I WAS FAT & IMPOTENT!

Pratt runs with Raptors in this scene from Jurassic World

THEN

Chris Pratt got real fat for laughs when he starred on Parks and Recreation - but he's since buffed up

CHRIS PRATT WEIGHED 300 POUNDS!

FAT may have seemed funny for Jurassic World star Chris Pratt - but the joke was on him!

The 35-year-old actor, who gained a ton of weight to play Andy Dwyer on the NBC sitcom Parks and Recreation, now says hitting 300 pounds destroyed his sex life and turned laughter to tears.

Although "I'd never seen myself funnier," he confesses, "I was impotent, fatigued, emotionally depressed, had real health issues. Fat's bad for your heart, your skin, your system, your spirit."

He later clarified he was a dud in the sack due to a loss of desire, not erectile dysfunction. Turns out extra weight can transform testosterone one into the female hormone estrogen, crippling a man's sex drive, explains men's health expert Dr. Kevin Billups.

Fortunately for Pratt - and his actress wife Anna Faris - his libido cranked up again after he got back into shape to play a Navy SEAL in the 2012 movie Zero Dark Thirty.

And he plays a tough as nails Raptor wrangler in the new Jurassic movie. Pratt, who has lost an estimated 70 pounds, says losing weight affects you "not just physically, but how you feel and how your spirit feels."

DID YOU GUESS?

The actor in the blue ball cap on page 47 is none other than Liam Neeson, star of the smash-hit Taken movie series and Unknown. How'd you do?

REAL LIFE

HORSE RACING

AMERICAN PHAROAH's spectacular Triple Crown victory gave the Sport of Kings a shot in the arm. But the feat can't erase the shocking truth: the horse racing industry is a death sentence for many of the majestic beasts.

While the speedy bay stallion basks in the glow of his historic achievement, as many as 800 horses die on the track in the U.S. each year. And another 10,000 injured or less talented thoroughbreds are cruelly shipped off to slaughterhouses in Canada and Mexico, says sources.

"That's another side to this breathtaking sport that somehow manages to keep quiet the daily carnage at tracks around the country," says a source.

Deserved better

Just hours before American Pharoah dashed to glory by winning the June 6 Belmont Stakes, a tragic horse named Helwan was put down on the same New York track after snapping his left ankle.

Helwan "deserved better than he got," says the source. "What he got was what too many horses get for their troubles – death."

One problem is racehorses are bred for speed, which puts undue stress on their bodies.

American Pharoah and jockey Victor Espinoza charge in the history books at the Belmont Stakes Thoroughbreds weigh as much as 1,000 pounds but have ankles no larger than a human's.

"Breeders want more power, more speed and less weight," notes the source. "The skinnier the legs, the lighter the horse."

What's more, many racehorses are fed pain-numbing drugs to keep them running even if injured. That increases the chance that a horse will snap a leg – like Helwan – and have to be killed, sources add.

Some trainers experiment with anything that might give them an edge, injecting horses with blood doping agents, stimulants, cancer drugs, Viagra and even cobra venom, reveals another insider.

CE HORROR! Hidden shame behind Triple Crown glory

"With so much money on the line, people will do anything to make their horses run faster," confesses a racing official.

And when a horse is injured, adds the official, many owners would rather ship it off to the slaughterhouse than pay for costly veterinary fees.

Says a racing insider, "It's hard to watch these poor animals running for their lives for people who couldn't really care less if they live."

GIRLFRIEND

SUPER horse American Pharoah has nothing on jockey Victor Espinoza when it comes to stud appeal!

The 5-foot-2 Triple Crown winning rider has his own stable of fillies - and he likes them young and younger.

But his horsing around got him into trouble when his 25-year-old fiancée, Stephanie Kunkel, and 19-year-old girlfriend, Kelly Kovalchick, BOTH showed up to see his historic run in the Belmont Stakes on June 6.

An outraged Kelly blasted the runt-sized Romeo as a "shameful coward," and Stephanie's mom, Julie Kunkel, reportedly belated, "He's engaged to my daughter!"

But the flap is nothing new for Espinoza, 43, who'd tossed aside 20-something Alessandra Viola for Stephanie seven years ago. Incredibly, Alessandra says the cradle-robbing rider started dating her when she was just 12!

"My parents were always around," notes Alessandra, now 31. "I was never left alone with Victor."

She adds that Espinoza proposed when she was 16, sealing the deal with a sizeable sparkler.

Alessandra says the ring is now gracing Stephanie's finger, but that could soon change because, "The girls have an expiration date."
